Since the main goal of this plan is to construct a hotel, this is evident that there is goods supplied, i.e. passengers and tourists' residence, food and goods purchasing places, which are of the service nature. In some way, the services can be considered customer's goods; because these goods are one consumed directly by individuals. As it indicates, hotel is a resting, sleeping and eating food place for tourists. Providing these services in fact is the main application of hotels. Of course, it is necessary to note that hotels have been used for other applications over time. Based on the fact that residence consists the main chain of the tourism industry, a hotel can provide different services such as residence, coffee shop, transportation, meetings services and conferences and other services alike considering their type.
